

Texas should adapt its “grow your own teachers” model to recruit and retain rural criminal lawyers. Legislators should also fund rural

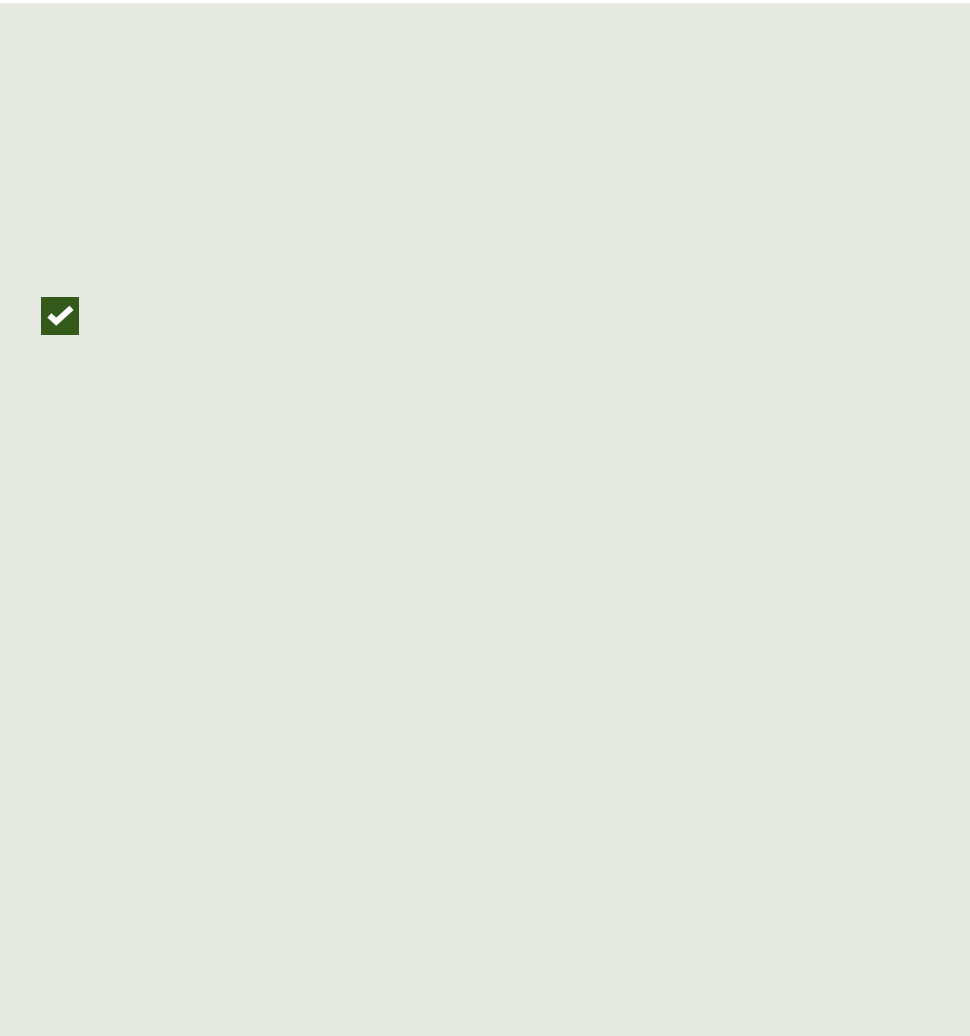

FACT SHEET

3 V S B M 5 F Y B T 6 S H F O U
. P S F 1 S P T F D V U P S T B
% F G F O T F 1 S P W J E F S T

! THE PROBLEM

- 3 V S B M F D V U P S T P G G J D F T D B O O P U S F D S V J U B O E S F U B J O F O P V H I M B
T U B G G J S M P D B M D S J N J O B M D P V S U T
- . J T E F N F B O P S E F G F O E B O U T J O S V S B M 5 F Y B T B S F G P V S U J N F T M F T T M
I B W F B M B X Z F S U I B O E F G F O E B O U T J O V S C B O B S F B T
- 4 P N F 5 F Y B T D P V O U J F T O F W F S Q S P W J E F B Q Q P J O U F E D P V O T F M G P S
N J T E F N F B O P S E F G F O E B O U T
- The problem is getting worse. Since 2015, Texas has lost P O F R V B S U F S of its rural defense lawyers B O E B O V O U P M E O V N C F S P G S V S B M Q S P T F D V U P S T.

 Read our policy brief Greening Criminal
Legal Deserts in Rural Texas

DeasonCenter.org

 (214) 768-2837

 deasonjusticecenter@smu.edu

© Copyright 2023 Southern Methodist University, Deason
Criminal Justice Reform Center